

Torre Almonte

Torre Almonte: a medieval castle "historically bound structure" recently restored according to today's criteria of restoration and part of a truly fortified system around the city of Todi.

The Almonte tower sits on a lofty hill, offering an outstanding view of the surrounding countryside. It is made up of a primitive nucleus, a square tower built at the end of the XII century then added on to in the XIII century. The interior has maintained the window openings of the XIII cent. and the characteristics of the later plan of the VII and VIII centuries. The tower is surrounded by a secular park, where the owners have reinstated an VIII century garden enriched by the above mentioned unique antique rose collection. Of particular interest is the 17th century recently restored chapel, encompassed by gardens and particularly suitable for religious celebrations.

The recent restoration includes 2 apartments, one on the third and one on the fourth floor, equipped with every modern comfort, and two elegant suites on the II floor. Each apartment is of 120 sqm, maintains the original structural characteristics, including terra cotta floors, wooden beam ceilings, stone fireplaces, antique doors together with a unique blend of family heirloom furniture and modern design pieces.
